She said of Jermaine, who was in the audience on Saturday: "We're just taking it slow. I've asked him to come up to see me."

But a source said: "Nikkita has still got the X Factor as far as Jermaine is concerned."

"The two of them have grown really close and him going to stay at her house will certainly up the stakes in their relationship." Nikkita revealed that it was hard to go through the pressure of the show without her mum, who died last year from breast cancer.

She said: "I had my family there but there were times I just wished she was there."

The singer also admitted she was struggling with her new-found fame.

She added: "I get really shocked when people keep coming up to me in the street. I don't know what to say."

Meanwhile, Leona Lewis, 21, is now the bookies' favourite to win the contest after wowing the crowd with Elton John classic Sorry Seems To Be The Hardest Word on Saturday.

Latest odds are: Leona 11-10; Ben 13-8; Eton Road 7-2; Robert 20-1; Ray 33-1; The MacDonald Brothers 50-1.

Dynamite in crash terror

RAPPER Ms Dynamite was recovering last night after a terrifying 100mph crash while filming for Sky One's The Race.

The back of her Formula Ford car was clipped by AC/DC star Brian Johnson, 59, during the show's finale at Silverstone in Northamptonshire.

Ms Dynamite, 25, was sent spinning down the track for 50 yards before her car came to a halt. A spokesman said: "She doesn't appear to have any serious injuries but she's very shaken."

GLAMOUR girl Jordan last night told how she wants to boost her fan club - by trying for more kids! The model-turned-singer, real name Kate Price, said her first two children - Harvey, four, and 17-month-old Junior - can't get enough of her crooning. After performing new single A

BRITS could soon have cheap booze and cigs delivered to their door.

An EU ruling will prevent us paying billions in tax by allowing orders over the internet.

Only the duty in the country of origin is paid, meaning potential savings are huge. In Latvia, 200 cigs cost only £7.20, a saving of about £43. And several European countries charge no duty on wine, while in Britain the Government levies £1.29 per 75cl bottle.

A decision by the European Court of Justice is due next week - but the

by PAUL MALLEY

Government is fighting the move. The Treasury rakes in £15 billion a year from duty on alcohol and cigarettes.

Euro MP Charles Tannock, Tory spokesman on the duty-free trade, said: "This will be a huge embarrassment to Gordon Brown."

Rip-off

The move could also spell the end of the booze cruise. For years Brits have beaten rip-off prices in Britain by loading cars with cut-price drink and cigs on cross-Channel trips. Now they may be able to order cheap supplies on the web and have them delivered.

A spokesman for P&O Ferries said the firm planned to take advantage of the ruling by providing new services.

He said: "We see it as a real opportunity for our business. We could offer a more door-to-door service for customers."

How Brits do their duty

EXCISE duty on a 75cl bottle of wine in Britain is £1.29 but in 12 EU countries it is zero, and in France it is less than 2p. Britain has the second-highest rate on spirits, after Sweden, at £5.48 for 70cl. For beer, there is an excise rate of 37p a pint - 19 other states have rates below 10p. And for a £5.23 packet of 20 cigarettes, the Government takes £4.03 in tax.

WHAT A DRAG!

PERVY TRANNY STALKS JACKO

MICHAEL Jackson has hired four ex-SAS minders after being stalked by a drag queen.

And the singer, 48, has resorted to wearing bulletproof vests – even in bed.

Michael – who will perform Thriller this Wednesday at London's Earls Court for the World Music Awards – is said to be so troubled by the lewd letters he has been sent, he even struggles to sleep at night.

Seedy

An insider said: "This person is plaguing his life and has sent some seriously dodgy letters."

"They are from a man who works as a drag queen in the seedy Kings Cross area of Sydney."

"The content is eerie to say the least and this person is seemingly obsessed with Michael.

"He writes all kinds of things saying that he knows Michael and wants to marry him."

"Known by his nickname Melanie, he tells Michael he needs to marry him."

"He writes up to 100 letters a day and he sometimes sends personal body fluids to other celebrities."

"Michael isn't taking any risks and has hired four big SAS minders and you really wouldn't want to mess."

"He has been plagued by this stalker and has taken extra precautions which include wearing bulletproof vests."

"Michael has been having problems sleeping because of this bad dude."

Michael is also said to be preparing to make a huge comeback in the music industry.

His performance in London this week will be his first UK appearance in nine years and he will collect the diamond award.

Wig

He arrived in London last night wearing a centre-parted wig, dark glasses and cartoon Pluto T-shirt.

The wig was probably meant to help Jacko keep a low profile, but he still caught our snapper's eye at the Hempel Hotel in London.

Our Bayswater spy added: "It's for his safety as much as anything else. But his security team are top notch and will make sure he is untouched."

BEYONCE

Knowles may have just wanted a quiet night at her central London hotel - but she was still all smiles for the cameras. The 25-year-old American R&B star looked simply delicious in this black diamante dress. And the beauty was down to earth when hordes of adoring fans fawned over her for autographs. An onlooker said: "Beyoncé was lovely and so smiley. She was very polite and gladly signed fans' autographs." And if this is what she wore for a low-key evening, we can't wait to see what she'll be wearing at this Wednesday's World Music Awards at Earls Court in London.

We're too busy to be dirty

CLEAN WINNER: Anthea thinks girls can have it all

HOUSEWIVES SEX-STARVED

by JASON GREEN

DESPERATE housewives say they don't get enough sex – because all the cleaning and cooking leaves them too tired.

A new survey has revealed that 35% of Brit women say they're starved of nookie but haven't the time or energy for it.

And that's because they're far too busy running around with the vacuum cleaner. Nearly half of the women surveyed spent more than six hours a week doing housework but less than 15 minutes having nookie.

Juggling

On top of all the chores, British housewives are also more likely than ever before to have a career, with 75% holding down a job.

Sexy Anthea Turner, 46, reckons girls can do the lot – as she showed by offering tips to women on her BBC3 show Perfect Housewife.

But writer and housework expert Rita Konig thinks it can be impossible to strike a balance. She said: "We are now juggling so much that something has to give. Unfortunately, it appears that it's sex that suffers."

"If you're not having sex with your husband, it won't be long before someone else is. You don't want to be doing the Hoovering while someone else is doing your husband."

The survey was commissioned to mark today's DVD release of Desperate Housewives Series 2.

A THIRD of teenage girls lose their virginity before they are 16.

The shock figure was revealed in a survey of 1,700 teens. Almost half of those who'd had under-age sex said they did it because were in

The survey was carried out by YouGov for ITV1 show This Morning as part of its Sex Week – which kicks off today at 10.30am.

INDIAN CARRY-OUT: Angelina carries little Zahara, while Brad has fun with Maddox in Mumbai yesterday

by EMMA WALL

PROUD parents Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt showed off their family yesterday as they took a break from filming in the heat of India.

The Hollywood stars carried their two adopted children as they went on a sightseeing stroll through the streets of Mumbai.

Gorgeous Angelina, 31, carried one-year-old Zahara, while Brad, 42, hoisted five-year-old Maddox up on his shoulders.

Their latest arrival, five-month-old Shiloh, was left behind in the care of a nanny.

One onlooker said: "They looked the perfect family. They seemed relaxed and really delighted to show off their family."

Angelina and Brad are in India to film A Mighty Heart, which tells the story of US journalist Daniel Pearl, 38, who was kidnapped and murdered by al-Qaida terrorists in Pakistan in 2002.

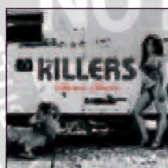

Angelina stars as Daniel's widow Mariane, now 39, while Brad is producing the movie.

Crime family netted £1.1m in daylight house raids

STOLEN BY STEELE

by JERRY LAWTON

A FAMILY of burglars called Steele made £1.1million in just two years by carrying out daylight raids on posh homes.

They were dubbed "The Untouchables" because they were so expert at covering their tracks.

The family turned their semi-detached house into Fort Knox by fitting it with iron gates and a steel-lined front door imported from China.

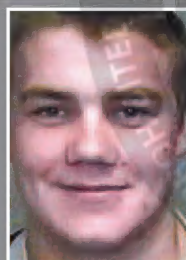

Booty

CCTV cameras monitored all the rooms, which were also fitted with motion detectors.

The £50,000 security system guarded their booty.

And the gang was only caught when police launched a special surveillance operation aimed at bringing them to justice.

Last night four family members - dad and gang boss Ralph, 38, his FAMILY BUSINESS: Sons Kevin and Mark and their cousin Paul nephew Paul, 21, and sons Mark, 20, and Kevin, 18 - were starting jail sentences totalling 17-and-a-half years.

Leeds Crown Court heard the Steeles raided 72 exclusive homes for jewellery and cash.

They targeted Asian households in the west Yorkshire cities of Leeds and Bradford. Their owners did not use banks and kept vast amounts of money and gems in their safes.

Swoop

The gang spent weeks surveying properties before making a swoop.

They used their expert knowledge of security systems to disable alarms. Det Sgt Steve Thomas, a member of the team that snared the family, said: "Their semi-detached house was the most heavily fortified I have seen in my life."

Sentencing them Judge Ian Dobkin said: "It looks like a family business."

The frail ex-world heavyweight champ has Parkinson's Disease but proudly took a ring-side seat to see Laila, 28, above left, retain her super-middleweight title by stopping Shelley Burton in the fourth round.

Cheers of "Ali! Ali!" filled Madison Square Garden where the Louisville Lip lost to Joe Frazier, 62, in the first of their three epic fights. Ali, 64, later headed off to a Parkinson's benefit gala organised by fellow sufferer and Back to the Future star Michael J Fox, 45.

Corrie 'danger star' banned PC FOOLS IN A TIZZ OVER FIZ

LIGHTS FEAR: Jennie

EXCLUSIVE by JERRY LAWTON

BUREAU PRATS have banned Corrie's Fizz Brown from switching on Christmas lights - because it's too dangerous.

Town bigwigs feared so many fans would turn up to see Fizz that they'd need anti-surge barriers.

And they moaned that they couldn't get enough in time for the planned visit by actress Jennie McAlpine, 21, this coming Saturday.

Whimper

Fed-up locals in Scarborough, North Yorks, branded the cancellation "barny".

One fumed: "They must be off their rockers. Fizz may be fun to watch on the telly but she's hardly Robbie Williams. I can't see thousands mobbing her. Now the lights will go on with a whimper."

One councillor, Penny Marsden, stormed: "The ban is a joke. This is no football crowd. It's a joyous occasion and we are going to rob children of it."

Last year, about 10,000 saw Corrie's Kirk Sutherland (actor Andy Whymant, 24) flick the switch.

This year, police, firemen and some councillors feared crowds would be at risk.

Council spokesman Malcolm Hall said: "We're all bitterly disappointed but the health and safety of people is paramount."

Druggies' deal

JUNKIE prisoners could get thousands of pounds in compensation from the Government because they were forced to stop taking drugs in jail.

Heroin addicts said the cold turkey they were due to undergo amounted to assault.

Some 198 lags are on the verge of making an out-of-court settlement with the Prison Service. But if that fails a full hearing - based on six test cases - will start in the High Court today.

John Midgley, of the Campaign Against Political Correctness, said: "It sounds to me that ordinary tax-paying members of the public are again the victims of the crazy compensation culture."

PAULINE SNUBBED

Closest kin won't be at her funeral

by NIGEL PAULEY
THE funeral of Pauline Fowler will be snubbed by both her daughter and grand-daughter.

No favourites from EastEnders' past will be at the graveside for the storyline next month.

Pauline's girl Michelle (Susan Tully, 39) and young Vicki (Scarlett Johnson, 21) will be staying put across The Pond.

A show spokesman confirmed: "No-one from the show will be coming back. Their absence will be explained in the story."

Sources claim Sue, now enjoying success as a director, couldn't be persuaded to return.

And it was decided not to invite Scarlett, who left the show last year.

One series insider said: "Eyebrows will be raised at the absence of two of Pauline's closest surviving relatives."

Event

"Some people on the show feel it's very unrealistic. If Sue and Scarlett couldn't come back, maybe they should have hired other actresses."

"After all, the funeral will be the most tear-jerking event of the year."

EastEnders

MENTALLY ill
Jean Slater breaks down when she is finally reunited with her badboy son Sean.

Jean (Gillian Wright, 34) convinced herself Sean (Rob Kazinsky, 22) was dead after he walked out on her with his dad.

But he shows up to surprise his mum and sister Stacey (Lacey Turner, 18).

Glynis cops a fair deal

EMMERDALE

EMMERDALE chiefs have lined up a real Christmas cracker for fans - blonde bombshell Glynis Barber.

Action girl Glynis, who starred in 80s police saga Dempsey and Makepeace, will play glamorous murder squad detective DCI Grace Barraclough.

She arrives in the village on Boxing Day to probe the killing of Tom King (Kenneth Farrington, 70) on his wedding day.

ITV sources claim DCI Barraclough has her work cut out because TEN suspects are in the frame.

Glynis, 51, said: "I'm thrilled with the role in Emmerdale. It's been 20 years since I last played a detective, although this one is the boss."

"I shall thoroughly enjoy playing the part."
